GEORGIAN SELLS LAND NEAR MIAMI FOR $1,000,000

One hundred acres of land near Miami, Fla., belonging to Major Hugh Gordon, former prominent Atlantan, and son of the late General John B. Gordon, was sold for $1,000,000, ac-cording to advices received in Atlanta

The property was a part of the tract inherited by Major Gordon from his distinguished father. It is located on Biscayue Bay, four miles north of Miami and was purchased by "Miami Shores," a real estate development company.

Hughes Spalding, prominent attorney and close friend of Main torney and close friend of Major Gor-don brought the news of the sale to Atlanta. Attorney Spalding was in Miami at the time of the transaction, the terms of which, according to Mr. Spalding, carried a cash payment of $250,000 with the balance in one, two and three years. The purchase orice was arranged on the basis of soon after the Civil war for a mere pittance and it was bequeathed to Major Gordon upon the death of his father.

It is stated that, of his original holdings, Major Gordon still holds 10 acres upon which he and his son propose to build winter homes.

been seen in Atlanta for, lo, these many moons. They gave musical numbers, solo singing numbers, chorus dancing numbers, solo dancing numbers and comedy that would "go over" in any entertainment company.

The program opened with an inspiring March number by the Mandolin club. Then came a lovely creation, "Waiting for the Dawn," by Kathryn Campbell and ensemble. Ruth Moore then gave a delightful little feature number entitled "Honest and Truly."

"Five Belles Give Number." "Five Belles Give Number."

"The Five Belles," Billy Johnson, Frances Howard, Virginia Turman, Josephine Hollis and Katherine Ginn then gave "My Best Gal," and this was followed by "Syncopated Lillian." a clever number by Lillian Cohn. A group by the Crawford Jazz or-chestra followed, consisting of "Go 'Long, Mule," "Clog" and "Sallay," the latter number being delightfully sung by Sara Sanders with the assist-ance of a rural dancing chorus of love-ly girls.

The next number, a spectacular arrangement showing a scene in a cabaret, with the Mandolin club as the orchestra, featured the solo dancing of Ruth Moore and Vallie York. It was understood, however, that the matter of headquarters location likely would be discussed at the next meeting of the directors to be held in New Orleans in April. entitled "In Argentine.

Following adjournment of the afternoon session the delegates were guests at a banquet at the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. Benjamin S. Barker was toastmaster.

Budgets of needs of state departments for the next five years will be estimated by heads of these departments, following a request to this effect made on state officials Friday by Governor Clifford Walker. This information will be assembled for consideration of the special tax reform committee named recently by the governor with C. Murphy Candler as governor following a conference held by the executive and a group of Georgia business men, headed by Eugene R. Black, president of the Atlanta Trust company. After the special committee finishes its investigation of the needs of state departments and institutions it will turn over its re-port to a second committee to be headed by Mr. Black, and this committee will wage a campaign for the adoption of reforms outlined in the report of the special committee.

insistent that the thermometer would mount even higher today.

The mercury on Friday afternoon rose to 65 degrees, after starting in the early morning from a minimum reading of 50. This was five degrees warmer than Thursday, when 60 was the top. It is probable that the mercury will show 70 degrees today.

Moderate disturbances are reported over Colorado and Montana, despite fine weather prevailing over most of the country. These disturbances are expected to move eastward over the upper lakes during the next few days and cause southerly winds and spring-like weather in Atlanta.

All forces behind the drive directed toward the raising of a fund to effect the removal of Columbia Theological seminary from Columbia, S. C., to Atlanta are focused on obtaining a sum of $10,000 necessary to match a like amount offered by an anonymous friend of the institution on the condition that his donation be duplicated by a like sum not later than Sunday night.

Confidence that this required amount will be raised in the allotted time was expressed Friday by Dr. Richard T. Gillespie, president of the seminary.

the seminary.
Optimism over the prospect of the state-wide campaign to be launched April 1 was expressed by Dr. Gillespie, who at the same time issued very commendatory statements regarding the way in which greater Atlanta has responded in the drive conducted through the seminary organization in the city.

Dr. Gillespie asserts that Georgia and neighboring states are aroused to the importance of moving the seminary to Atlanta, in view of the fact that this city is the geographic rnor with C. Murphy Candler as hairman.

The committee was named by the overnor following a conference held y the executive and a group of Georia business men, headed by Eugene L. Black, president of the Atlanta

Griffin, at the close of the war, was not a promising place for a money-less man. Captain English, without a trade or a profession, soon saw that he would have to find a field where "hustle"—his only capital—would count to his profit. Atlanta, active as the military center of federal operations in Georgia, seemed the nearest and most promising place for adven-

So Captain English said "so long" to his friends in Griffin—such as Gilman J. Drake, Captain John White, Col-onel Nat Hammond. Thur Manley, John L. Doyal, A. D. Nunnally and scores of others—and set his face to-ward Atlanta. As I remember it, on the score of economy, he inteuded to march to Atlanta over the crosstles, but Captain Lit Bloodworth, conduc tor on the Macon and Western road, wouldn't stand for that and insisted upon Captain English being his guest on the train—and thus he came.

His First Job.

The city was full of federal officials, troops, parolled Confederates and refugee negroes from "all over." Jobs for civilians were scarce and applicants for them were many. Captain English wanted one in a hurry and no foolish pride hampered him. Bloodworth introduced him to the manager of the old National hotel, who, because Bloodworth as a passenger conductor could help the hotel patronage, agreed to take on Captein English as the lookout and marker for the billiard room. There the federal officers were accustomed to play their games, day and night, and there for some time Captain English, the ex-Confederate hero, faithfully kept tab on and for some of the men against

A Simple, Safe, Inexpensive Method that Clears Out the Head, Nose and Throat.

There are many people suffering from chronic catarrh who would like to know how they can stop catching cold after cold, for they must realize that sooner or later this may lead to deafness and other serious troubles.

Dr. Blosser, for years a specialist in catarrh, is the discoverer of a pleasant, direct method that can be used by women and children as well as men. His remedy is made from medicinal herbs, flowers and berries which you smoke in a dainty pipe or cigarette, and inhale the vapor into all the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs, carrying medicine where sprays, douches and salves cannot possibly reach. It contains no cubebs, tobacco or habit-forming drugs.

when he inaugurated the system of paying by envelopes in 1921.

When the 1925 sanitary committee ordered that all unclaimed wages be paid into the city treasury, Jackson's books showed that $122.12 was due. However, he explained that the shortage was incurred priors to 1921, and had been carried on the books from year to year since that time. He offered to make the full amount good.

The case was ordered reopened Monday when city council passed a resoday when city council passed a resolution introduced by the sixth ward delegation, which asked that Jackson be given a public hearing.

John Jentzen, chief of the sanitary John Jentzen, chief of the sanitary department, was the only other witness Friday. He stated that Jackson informed him of the shortage, and said that be would have paid the amount himself, but feared that the company by which he is bonded would take the attitude that he was attempting to 'cover something up," and revoke his bonds.

Councilman W. E. Saunders, chairman of the sanitary committee, stated that a complete zudit of Jackson's books will be started immediately, and that the committee's decision will rest on the result of the audit.

Digs ditches to become screen actor!

A certain film celebrity-you know him well—was brought up in an Orphanage, worked his way through College, and went "bumming" around the world as sailor, lumberjack, miner, cowpuncher. But he was not satisfied. In 1913 he decided he wanted to act in the movies. For months he was turned down at every studio, always "no place." Determination won out. Finally at D. W. Griffith's Studio he got a job digging ditches at $1.50 a week and then . . . finish it in the "Blue Book of the Screen." The story of how Monte Blue climbed to the top is wonderfully human and real. It will help you over the rough spots.

Around the World In an Oldsmobile

MR. AND MRS. F. M. RICHARDS, of Los Angeles, Calif., are in Atlanta on their way around the world in an Oldsmobile. They have covered 202,374 miles in automobiles. Their first car was an Oldsmobile that they drove 97,307 miles in two years. Their second car was of another make, and when it was worn out they bought another Oldsmobile because of the exceptional service the first had given them. The Oldsmobile Model 30 Sport Touring that they are driving has had the carbon removed and valves ground but once. It has given them an average of twenty-four miles to the gallon of gasoline, and they say the oil consumption is too small to be measured.

What the Oldsmobile Six has done for Mr. and Mrs. Richards it will do for you. It is a product of General Motors, and you will find Oldsmobile service stations wherever you happen to be. All Oldsmobile bodies are built on the same chassis, enabling us to so standardize production that manufacturing costs are kept at a minimum. The letter from the students reads as follows:

"Editor Constitution: No group of people can possibly be more interposited in the Berry schools endowment fund than we, the members of the student body. Ever since Mr. to Coks' offer became known the question in the heart of every Berry student has been, 'How can I help?' In the daily chapel exercises, in our evening devotions, or wherever the tional prizes are given by the American Bar association. Each oration must be original and must not take over 10 minutes to deliver. The sub-ton, N. C. Mr. Gilmour was one of the earliest of the workers to assist Miss Berry in founding the Berry schools. His telegram to The Constitution follows:

"Having assisted Miss Berry in the summers of 1900 and 1901 in the very beginning of her work, even before the Berry schools were first launched, it is with both wonder and delight that I witness today the magnitude to which the work has grown. The more ordinary you are, that is, the more you sink into a crowd as a nondescript part of it, the more you must try to make yourself stand out. Establish a personality by clothes, manners and attainments.

Reader—A mud pack, made from any kind of soil that was handy, used to be a "first aid" for all insect stings in past generations, so there must have been much healing riue in it, but it would be of no use as a cosmetic. It would leave your skin very dry and harsh, just as it does your hands after working in a garden.

Worried One-It is much better for you to build up the tissue through massage and exercise than to use plaster to eradicate lines in the skin A plaster is useful when lines are made by frowning or other bad habits made by frowning or other bad habits of making grimaces. They act as reminders, as each time you forget and make the lines there is tug at the skin from the tightened plaster. There is no harm in wearing a corset of rubber webbing if it is not too tight.

It's no easy matter to borrow ten th usand dollars just offhand. I realized that when I began to wonder how I was going to get the money to help Virginia out, so that she could pay for the stock she'd bought. I knew that I could go to Frank Harrison and ask him to lend it to me. But I didn't want to. There was Nick Wayne, but he wouldn't be able to help me, much as he'd want to. Anyway, I had no intention of going out and borrowing money. This was going to be a business-like transaction.

Oh, how I envied women who are able to earn money: I tried and tried to think of something that I could do, and there wasn't a thing.

A boy brought me a box of flowers.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED,

Nancy Larrabee remains in New York with her mother, Virginia, when her husband, Jim Larrabee, who is an army officer, goes to the Philippines on foreign service. Disillusioned after six mouths of marriage when she sees another woman in her husband's arms, she plays the social game as her mother dictates, in her retationships with Frank Harrison, a wealthy man twice her age, and Nicholas Wayne, whom she really likes.

tried to think of something that I could do, and there wasn't a thing, not one.

Virginia has told me the name of her broker. Finally after racking my brains for an hour. I decided to go to see him. Perhaps he could suggest something.

I dressed in may prettlest clothes, pi ked up the gold mesh bag with the emerald clasp that had caused more than one rang of conscience, and summoned the car that Frank Harrison had been so insistent about our using. After all. I might as well do the thing in style!

The broker Virginia dealt with had an office downtown, so I braved the terrors of the business section, where I'd never been before. I felt terribly out of blace in the elevator which took me up to his office. Everybody else looked so important. There were two girls about my own age who might have been stenographers or something like that; I could tell from something they said that they worked. How I envied 'hem! And then I saw one of them glancing at my mesh bag, and I realied that probably she was envying me. If she'd only known the truth!

I found the right office, and went in, and asked for the man whose name Virginia had given me. She asked who wanted to see him, and I said Mrs. Larrabee, and she wrote something on a card and gave it to an office boy. My eyes are very keen—even upside down I could see what she wrote. It was "She's aw fully pretty."

I felt bester after that. If he was the kind of man who's influenced by looks, I knew that it wouldn't be quite so hard for me to face him.

"Mr. Jordan will see you now, Mrs. Larrabee," the girl said a moment later, and I followed the boy down the ball, and into a private office.

A man glanced up as I entered. My heart began to flutter like a caged bird.

Burned Evidence By MRS. WILSON WOODROW

The story is being told by young Dandridge, junior member of a New York firm of lawyers. Old Jerome Fosdick, one of the richest clients of the firm, invites Dandridge to lunch at his home. The young lawyer is interested in the old man's granddaughter, Sara, a beautiful young society weman, who is Fosdick's heir. Fosdick tells Dandridge that Sara's father, his only son, had spent many years in South America, where he died After his death a South American woman appeared at the Fosdick home with baby Sara, whose mother, the noirse said, had died soon after the baby's father. Fosdick had investigated the woman's story and found it to be true.

After luncheon Madam Adelbron, a famous psychic, calls on Fosdick and tells him she had been an intimate friend of Sara's mother, in Buenos Aires when Sara was an infant and that when she had had to leave the city on a theatrical tour she had left with Sara's mother all her jewels and a large sum of money. When she returned to Buenos Aires Estrella Fosdick was dead and her property had disappeared. She has just succeeded in tracing them, and she demands that Jerome Fosdick return her jewels and the money with interest. A few days later the old man is found dead in his automobile. The case is in the hand of Police Inspector Curran. Dandridge tells him about Madam Adelbron's demands on Fosdick, and informs him that the medium had carried with her a list of jewels that had belonged to Sara's mother and written in the latter's handwriting, identical to a list in Sara's possession. Before Dandridge is able to have Mr. Fosdick's safe, which contains important letters, opened, it is mysteriously drilled and rifled. Curran and Dandridge hasten over to the Fosdick museum, and the old man's secretary, Misso O'Conner. They both have good allist. Herbert claims that he spent the hours between 6 and 11 at the house of Professor Markham, but the house about 8 o'clock and come out a little after 9:30. Herbert sticks to his allib, but numeum alone during the afternoon.

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

A TOPNOTCHER Inspector Curran's brows ruffled slightly, and he moved from the fireplace to the table, where he could ply his pencil on those interminable

"Now, you'd say, wouldn't you"-there was a tinge of sarcasm in his voice-"that this robbery was committed by the fellow who got into the museum last night by posing as Herbert? Well, it wasn't."

"No," he went on, evidently enjoying his little triumph; "a job like that was never done in less than three hours, and this double of Herbert's, according to my men, was only there an hour and forty minutes. He west in at five minutes after 8. and came out at a quarter to 10. On top of that, he was a young man. Young men lack the knack and the patience to do such an expert piece of drilling; they're soup men-nitroglycerin, you know. This was the work of a high class old timer. You can narrow 'em down to four or five. As a matter of fact, from certain other indications, I have narrowed it down to one, the Missionary."

"Yes; an old scoundrel that I've heard was once really employed in the mission field out in Persia or somewhere and trades on his knowledge Establishing his fame for honesty, and his clergyman's voice and appearance to get by. He goes around He set a pace he followed all his life. the banks and financial institutions so as to spy out the lay of the, land, for he's a topnotcher at any kind of a safe."

The goes about the safe and appearance to ket by. He goes about the lay of the light upon my feet?"

Undoubtedly more than one worried "George, don't you think I'm light upon my feet?"

Has wished she could depend upon His answer brought about a little

"The Missionary?"

"Prof. Quigley!" I exclaimed with sudden enlightenment.
"Sure," said Curran. "I spotted him as the Missionary the minute I heard the description. Of course, I haven't had a chance to verify it yet; When but I'll bet a thousand dollars to a plugged nickel that no such person is known to any scientist in New York."

'Then Herbert must have-"Maybe not." Curran's pencil paused. "Maybe his story that Fosdick rought the old fellow over to the museum is true. Fosdick might have been imposed on. The Missionary has put it over on some of the foxiest people in the country. But there was this about old Jerome. He always the dope on anybody of that kind checked up before he gave them a foothold. That brings us back to Herbert again-or possibly Miss O'Conner

"You don't wish to commit yourself?"

"Then take the other angle of it," he continued. "What about the who breezed into the museum last night, playing off as Herbert? Why he came or what he wanted is a riddle to me. But it's certain that the wasn't there for any good and that he never got his pass-key without the help of some one in the house. Whose? Herbert has an air-tight alibi to cover the evening; but that's not saying he mightn't have slipped his key to some one who jostled him in the street on his way to the Markhams and have got it back the same way on his road home. Or, on the other hand, Miss Secretary might have given out the impression. "There." He thrust his pencil behind his ear and stood up. I've shown you some of the snarls I've got to unravel. And believe me, that isn't the half of them. But I'm confident of one thing, Dandridge: that the place to pick up the thread is right here in this house." As he spoke he stepped over and touched the bell; and when Pardy appeared in response asked him to please tell Miss O'Conner he would like to see her. Pardy withdrew, closing the door behind him; and Curran, resuming his place at the table, sat with his chin in his hand, staring in front of him, his mouth twisting a little, but saying nothing. Taking my cue from him. I also made no comment, and we sat in silence until Miss Mouse slipped swiftly into the room.

Curran rose as swiftly. "Will you sit there?" He pointed to a chair opposite him where the light would fall strongly on her face and smiled at her ingratiatingly. "Miss O'Conner, I am going to be quite frank with you. This robbery couldn't have been put across without aid from inside. Now I want your Is there any one in the house you have reason to suspect?"

Upright and prim in her straight chair, her toes barely touching the floor, Miss Mouse looked back at him without a word. "You don't wish to commit yourself?" Curran's voice was soothing as a lullaby. "I'll put it another way. How do you feel about Mrs. Hayes?"

"I think," she said, concisely, "that if you knew Mrs. Hayes you would not name her in this connection." 'That leaves the curator. I've learned to believe in feminine intuitions, Miss O'Conner. Do you feel the same confidence in Mr. Herbert that you do in Mrs. Hayes?"

"No," calmly; "I do not." "Why?"

"Call it feminine intuition, if you wish."

"How long have you known him?" Curran took another tack.
"Only since I have been in this house. About a year and a half. "By the way, how did you secure your position with Mr. Fosdick?"

"I came over from England as a secretary for Mr. R. J. Cruden, of Montreal, a friend of Mr. Fosdick's. Mr. Cruden's health began to fail soon afterward, and he started on a journey around the world. Knowing Mr Fosdick was in need of a competent secretary, he suggested me to him and Mr. Fosdick engaged me."

"I see." Curran was busy over his squares and cubes and triangles n. "But let us get back to Herbert again. Miss O'Conner, I may be wrong, but you don't strike me as the sort of a woman with whom feminine intuition would weigh heavily. I believe that in most instances you would discount it in favor of a considered judgment. It would help us whole lot if you would tell me the real grounds for your doubts of Mr.

"Before I answer that question," she said, "I would like to make statement. My life has not been an easy one. I have had many difficulties. I began to earn my living when I was seventeen, quite a time ago, with a faint smile. "There were obstacles that seemed insurmountable." It was patent that she had been choosing her words with care, but she began to speak more freely.

"Everything changed when I came to Mr. Fosdick. He had been long withdrawn from active business, and the work was light. He had one o the most acute brainns I have ever encountered, and my association with him was stimulating. I was surrrounded with ease and comfort; many pleasures and privileges were accorded me to which I was totally unac-Miss Fosdick has always been more than kind to me.' 'There was the least quiver of emotion in her low, exquisite voice. "I have said this, Mr. Inspector, that you may understand my devotion to Miss Fosdick's interests. There are no lengths to which I would not go to assist

That said, she became prim and concise again. "There are at present reasons why I do not wish to give the grounds for my doubts of Mr. Herbert. Let me have a few days longer, and I think I will have some facts to lay before you which will be worthy of your consideration.'

Ever know a Prof. Quigley?" Curran shot this question at her. "I did not. Nor"—there was a suggestion of contempt in her tone—"do I think Mr. Fosdick ever had such an acquaintance."

"That sounds like pretty fair grounds for doubting Herbert," Curran probed, "How about some more? I'd be grateful even for a few surmises."

But again she shook her head even more decidedly than before, and, when he did not press the point, started to rise.

"Just one more question, Miss O'Conner," he stayed her. "As you probably know, every one in this house has been under surveillance since Mr. Fosdick's death. The other day the man who was shadowing you followed the way who was shadowing you followed the man who was shadowing you followed the man who was shadowing you followed the man who was shadowing you followed the way was s flowed you downtown into a rather questionable part of the city. He's a good man, too; but you threw him off so cleverly that he lost you. Why did you do that?"

New York, February 20 .- The cot-New York, February 20.—The cotton market declined further today owing to private reports of showers in the southwest and a disposition to liquidate long contracts in advance of possible March notices next week. May sold off to 24.55, a net decline of 19 points and a loss of about 41 points from the high level of last Wednesday. That delivery closed at 24.60, the general market closing 21.60, the general market closing steady at net declines of 14 to 16

The opening was barely steady at The opening was barely steady at declines of 7 to 10 points under overnight selling orders and in keeping with relatively easy late cables from Liverpool. Considerable doubt existed as to the rain outlook in Texas. Early offerings were fairly well taken, spot house brokers again absorbing March liquidation against sales of later deliveries. Demand slackened on very slight rallies, however, and the market was weaker late in the day under continued liquidation stimulated by private reports of rains or lated by private reports of rains or showers in the southwest and the failure of bullish comment on the reek-end figures to bring in more

MARKET DROPS
IN NEW ORLEANS.
New Orleans, February 20.—The cotton market developed a reactionary trend today and prices showed easiness right from the start. The selling, which was not very pressing, however, was due to fears of raims in Texas over the triple holiday which begins at the close of tomorrow's short session. Liquidation of the March interest and uneasiness created by expectations of large tenders on March contracts in the local market morrow, which will be the first notice day here, and in New York on Tuesday, helped the decline. At the lowest points reached in the afternoon prices showed losses compared.

Fears of rains and the belief tenders on March contracts will be large kent the market and the belief tenders on March contracts will be large kept the market on the downgrade nearly all day.

Tae final rally was due to denial of earlier rain reports in Texas and a report from New York that four million yards of sheetings had been sold there and shirtings, hitherto full, were now in demand. Fall River were now in demand. Fall River reported sales for the week of 75,000 pieces of print cloths. Exports for the day, 34,826 bales, and for the week, 205,773 bales. The excess in exports this season over last season now totals 1,810,318 bales.

The market threw off all traces of reaction during the afternoon trading and a great many stocks soared to new highs for the movement. Bailwin advanced over 6 points to 145. Rock Island mounted to its best price since the reorganization at 51%. Frisco sold at 72 on heavy buying. American Locomotive made a new record high for the present stock, at 124½. Steel Foundries, on reports of an increase in the dividend rate of $1 a share, advanced about 4 points. Beechnut, Pan-Americans, Mack Truck and many other stocks advanced rapidly. Southten speculators who have sold the market short must be in an unenviable position if they have not already taken their licking. ment of Agriculture.

March declined to 24.18, July to 24.77 and October to 24.58, making not losses of 19 to 21 points. The close was within 5 or 6 points of the lowest.

Except for some southern selling or ledging, the bulk of the pressure was attributed to liquidation of long accounts. The tendency to even up commitments for over the two-day aljournment until Tuesday probably was increased by uncertainty as to the weather in the southwest and the extent of reception of March notices here on Tuesday morning.

The world's visible supply of Americate otton showed a decrease of 130,688 bales for the week, against 59,975 last year.

New Orleans, La., February 20.—Predictions for unsettled weather in the southwest encouraged more or less selling at the start this morning but the easier tendency which resulted was arrested by the announcement of bullish week-end figures. The demand for cotton has not fulled, however, and we think the market cannot long ignore the bullish figures published from week to week, especially should the prevailing drought in the southwest continue.

New York, February 20.—Buying of stocks as well as short covering put prices on the stock exchange higher today. Trading was more active than yesterday despite the approaching Monday holiday. Within the past two days the long side of the stock market has made many friends. In Wall Street the feeling is that with congress out of the way higher prices will be witnessed.

With the rates fixed today in the call money market holding until Tuesday much interest was displayed in the money market. The renewal rate for call loans was down to 3 per cent with the amount of money offered greatly exceeding the demand.

One large Wall Street commercial bank went on record today as follows, with the prediction that money rates will work higher: "The outlook is for higher money ahead as business expands and we expect that this stage will shortly be reached. The major part of the increase in industry to date is in basic lines and the great resources of many businesses have enabled them to meet their growing cash requirements without recourse to borrowing, but further expansion of production and distribution should be reflected in rates." After discussing the recent heavy outflow of gold, it is continued:

"If additions were still being made to our stock of gold the course of rediscounts this year might be the same as in 1924, but the outflow of gold makes this less likely. The recent rapid increase in rediscounts of member banks with the federal reserve banks is a forerunner of firmer money, but the heavy stocks of gold in the federal reserve banks and in circulation in this country justifies the expectation that advances in rates will not be excessive.

Rock Island was one of the features of today's stock market, advancing on earnings figures circulated in the financial district. Chicago, February 20.—Wheat underwent material setbacks in price today, led by the July delivery, representing the new 1925 crop. Favorable reports concerning the outlook for growth of winter wheat were apparently something of a factor. The wheat market closed heavy, 3-8c to 17-8c net lower, May $1.85 1-8 to $1.85 1-4 ant July $1.53 3-4 to $1.54, with corn July $1.53 3.4 to $1.54, with corn 1.4e to 1.7-Se off, oats 1.1-Se to 1.2c down, and provisions showing

CAUSE PRICE DROP

According to a leading authority, the weather has been favorable in winter wheat territory, and with no severe changes, there has been but little complaint of damage by alternate thawing and freezing. Only limited areas were thus affected, and there has been a good snowfall over much of the important territory. In the southern portions of the winter wheat belt, the crop is showing life and greening up. Under such circumstances, the wheat market gave way when commission houses started to sell July on a liberal scale, notwithstanding an advance earlier in sympathy with an unexpected upturn of values at Liverpool.

Absence of any important new export business did a good deal to curb speculative action of wheat during the last part of the day and to increase the pressure to sell. Aside from the fact that purchases of wheat and four yesterday for Russia were unconfirmed, export dealing seemed to be held down to 400,000 bushels. Friends of higher prices were also handicapped by late feports of rain in the southwest.

Corn reacted with wheat after an early adfance. Eastern demand for corn was slow, and Kansas City was said to be shipping to Chicago. Oats were depressed by the huge stocks in signific the provision market.

$15.00 Doll for $4.95 When the "Little Miss Georgia" doll Christmas campaign offer of The Atlanta Constitution closed, it was found that there were a few of these magnificent dolls left on hand. Rather than carry them over to another sea-on, Constitution subscribers can ob-tain them while the supply lasts at $4.95, which is considerably less than $4.95, which is considerably less than cost.

"Little Miss Georgia" dell walks, talks, sleeps, winks, blinks, rolls hereyes, and does everything else that the premier doll of all times would be expected to do. She is non-breakable, elaborately outfitted; has real hair and is over 24 inches tall.

This doll has recently sold at retail throughout the country at from $12.50 to $15.00.

Atlanta and suburban Constitution subscribers and their friends can obtain the dolls at the city circulation department, second floor. Constitution building. Out-of-town orders filled by mail in first and second zones at same price, but beyond second zone 25c should be added n; to fourth zone and beyond that 50c additional.

This will be a splendid gift to some little girl.

DAILY STOCK FEATURE

AMERICAN SAFETY RAZOR advanced spectacularly in today's market because this stock is said to have been recently accumulated in large volume by a leading stock New York, February 20.—Cotton seed of closed easier. Prime summer vellow, $10.50 market operator who is a director of the company. An almost vertical advance of over 4 points was scored on rumors that he was negotiating for an additional block of $10.50: March, $10.65; April, $10.55; May was negotiating for an additional block of $10.50: March, $10.65; April, $10.55; May stock.

ROCK ISLAND, according to certain interests, will be the southern rail of 1925. Powerful interests are openly buying large blocks of the stock in the open narket. The common mounted to its best price since the reorganization of the company and touched 51% for a net gain of 4% points during today's market session. Rock Island common has a book value of about $125 a share and a conservative earning power on this valuation would meat a large net income during future years.

Dun's Review

New York, February 20 .-- Dun's to morrow will say:
"After the expansion of recent months, it is not surprising that further gains in business develop more slowly and that in some quarters an abatement of demand lately has occurred. Purchasing has been large in many instances, covering requirements for some time ahead and thus leaving less incentive for buyers to make additional commitments until goods previously ordered has passed into consumption. "That the movement of merchandise is of notably heavy volume is shown by returns of railroad freight traffic, hich continues to set new precedents for this season, and this evidence of trade activity is supplemented by oth-er favorable statistical comparisons. "Record of bank clearings, of mill takings of cotton, and of foreign com-merce disclose increases, and the rate of operation in the steel industry is even higher now than that of a year ago, with specifications against con-tracts exceeding shipments in the Chi-Weekly bank clearing $9,600,142,-

The conversation occurred while Mr. Case was studying the Erie railroad for a group of European in vestors. During his investigation trip be met Fairfax Harrison, president of the Southern railway, on a train and they started to talk of railroads.

Mr. Harrison, who still is president of the Southern, said he believed it be the coming railroad of the south. This led Mr. Case to study its possibilities, which resulted in the first purchase of Southern stock. Later Mr. Case and some friends bought more and continued to buy.

Last year their confidence was justified. In thirteen months Southern railway stock advanced from 321-2 to 92. In March of last year the stock paid a dividend of 5 per cent.

Mr. Case came to New York in 1906. He and his associates now hold controlling interest in the Southern and controlling to controlling the southern and controlling the southern and controlling the southern and they started to take of railroads.

IS SAVED BY STRING

Baltimore, Md., February 20.—Fate in the person of an iron-thewed chauffeur and a slender shoe string saved the life of tiny Anita Danzie, as she hung suspended yesterday head downward, from a rusted staple insecurely set in a window on the second floor at her home.

The rescue of the 3-year-old tot was as dramatic as it was miraculous. Playing about the second floor apartment, in a new pair of shoes she was wearing for the first time, little Anita fell from the window.

The child's fall was checked by the slender but strong string in one of the new shoes.

Gregory Jakimovick, a chauffeur, dashed up the stairway and leaped for the open window. Just as he reached for the feet of the child, the rusty, weather-broken staple broke. With a frantic grasp he secured a grip on the tiny dress of Anita and drew her to safety. Baltimore, Md., February 20 .- Fate

CURB MARKET

IN STEADY DEMAND

(From American Lumberman.)
Chicago, February 20.—(Special.)— Demand for lumber remains fair in volume, though restricted by unfavorable weather in the east and other important consuming sections, as well as able weather in the east and other important consuming sections, as well as by the generally conservative attitude of retailers, says the American Lumberman, Chicago. While there are prospects for active building in the spring, the dealers as a rule have decided not to "gamble" on the future and are buying only as needs actually arise. This policy Lmits the current volume of wholesale trade, but gratifies the far-seeing manufacturer, in arise. This policy Limits the current volume of wholesale trade, but gratifies the far-seeing manufacturer, in that it practically guarantees a good, steady business throughout the coming building season, instead of the periodical spurts and slumps that herefore have featured the lumber trade.

The southern pine market continues steady and in a strong position. A few soft spots have been reported, following the arrival in the south of fair, warm weather which has stimulated small mill activity; but there is every reason to expect that weakness will quickly disappear as demand gathers force with the approach of spring. Transit cars are also in greater evidence than they were a fortnight ago, but these meet with ready sale and are not menacing. Mill stocks as a rule are low, and manufacturers are but these meet with ready sale and are not menacing. Mill stocks as a rule are low, and manufacturers are well supplied with orders. The best demand is coming from the south, which is building heavily; from the railroads and oil fields, and from foreign markets. Trade with the north, east and middle west is held back by weather conditions, but is expected to open up very soon.

Stilling The Stormy Seas of Business Strife

You can always count upon finding some oil for the troubled waters by consulting The Constitution's A-B-C Classified Section.

When you run into some unexpected difficulty -such, for instance, as inability to secure skilled help-call on the Classified Columns.

The Employment classification will help you at this time-and the Business Service or Financial groups at another time. Whatever your difficulty. the classified offers are wide enough in variety and helpful enough in character to meet it adequately.

More and more people are regularly coming to the Classified Section for answers to their problems. You will never be able to keep up with these people if you don't do likewise.

Vinson, charged with killing her husband, an Atlanta physician. After a new trial was granted Mrs. Vinson she entered a plea of guilty at the second trial and was given a life sentence which she is now serving on the state prison farm at Milfedgeville.

Attorneys for the defense have two courses open to be followed in the hope of saving the life of the condition for a rehearing and the other an appeal to the prison commission and the governor for a commutation of the death sentence.

Mrs. Hushes was convicted in Judge Howard's division of the Fulton superfor court prior to the passage of the act substituting the electric chair for the gallows hence she will be hanged unless a change is made in the present verdict.
